PRESENTATIONS

Lindsay Sayer, a Harriton High School Senior, discussed her senior project and presented her idea for a middle school social justice conference called the “Genius” conference, inspired by the high school WOKE conference. The Genius conference would teach middle schoolers to be proud of who they are, encourage others, and be nurturing, understanding and accepting of diversity and difference.

The Board was pleased to accept 39 mini-grants for a total of $13,800 from the InterSchool Council (ISC) for a wide variety of projects and resources throughout the District’s 10 schools. The mini-grants will support initiatives in the areas of mindfulness, maker spaces, music, community service, diverse literature, gardening and nature, videography, culinary arts, health, art, STEM, and more.

Glen Williard, Managing Director of PFM Financial Advisors, LLC, presented their financial analysis of planning to fund the new middle school project. He explained that interest rates are currently low, making this a good time to borrow. He explained a wraparound bond issue is under consideration, so that repayments for new bonds will increase as existing payments go down. He also showed the schedule of how much money will be needed throughout the middle school construction project and how a series of bonds can be issued over the timeline of the project to fund it. Having a series of bond issuances will allow the District to be more accurate in predicting how much money will be needed and to borrow more or less at a particular time, considering interest rates.
